Connally Urges Quick Approval Of Alliance

Says Reds In East Europe Menace Peace

Washington, July 5—(AP)—Senator Connally (D-Tex.) today urged speedy Senate approval of the North Atlantic Treaty as a warning to would-be conquerors that 300,000,000 people will fight aggression.

In solemn tones, opening Senate debate on the treaty, Connally told his colleagues that Russia's domination of eastern Europe is "a constant threat to world peace."

He said the proposed 12-nation pact is "a flaming sign to any aggressor: 'Do not enter' the North Atlantic area."

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) ranking Senate GOP leader in foreign affairs, is scheduled to make a plea for ratification of the treaty tomorrow.

Predicts Short Debate
Connally predicted the debate will last only a few days. "Opposition is getting weaker," he said.

Senator Byrd (D-Va.), an opponent of the arms-for-Europe program which the Truman administration is seeking to back up the Atlantic treaty, said he expects that not more than six or eight senators will vote against the treaty.

Connally, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, addressed the Senate in the cramped, historic chamber where the nation's early lawmakers used to sit more than 100 years ago—the modern Senate chamber is being refitted. In a two-hour, 9,000 word speech, he said:

"The treaty is not directed against the Soviet Union nor its satellite states."

But, he went on, it is "a noble declaration that no armed aggressor, no swaggering conqueror, no military despot shall invade the North Atlantic area."

"We cannot tolerate the grabbing off of weak or defenseless nations closer and closer to the United States," Connally said. "Aggressors and conquerors must keep their distance. They must not extend their mailed hands into this territory."

"If the Soviet Union really believes the pact is aimed at her, then I suggest that she demonstrate her peaceful intentions and embrace a policy of full cooperation with the North Atlantic countries within the framework of the United Nations."

Citing the danger of "indirect aggression," the Texas senator tolled off the list of nations which he said have fallen under the shadow of Moscow—Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Hungary, Poland, Yugoslavia and Albania.

Steelworkers To Take Up Wage Talks Today

Pittsburgh, July 5—(AP)—Wage talks between the CIO-United Steelworkers and the U.S. Steel Corp., the industry's leader, take up again tomorrow.

The result of their contract sessions may answer these questions: Will the country have another nation-wide steel strike—the first since 1946?

"Big Steel" called a recess in bargaining June 22 to digest union demands for a general wage increase, amount undisclosed, plus company financed insurance and pension programs. The corporation, in bargaining covering 175,000 employees in six subsidiaries, refused to talk about pensions but promised a full answer to the demands when contract discussion resumed.

In Washington, it was reported another economic study on wages would be forthcoming July 11, based on a treatise by former government economist Robert R. Nathan. In 1946, Nathan made a similar survey for the CIO which contended U.S. industry could well afford a 25-cent hourly pay increase. Businessmen contended Nathan's economics were faulty.

The Steelworkers, and many another union, settled that year for wage boosts of 19 cents an hour.

Findings of the new Nathan report, first disclosed by the New York Herald-Tribune, remained a secret but one source joked "it probably won't recommend any wage cuts."

It will be announced publicly only five days before the steelworkers may strike under terms of their present contract. The clauses which permitted wages and insurance to be renegotiated this year also say the union may strike July 16 if no agreement is reached by that date.

The steelworkers' present basic hourly rate is $1.65. They won an 18 cent hourly boost in 1946, 15 cents in 1947 and 13 cents last year.

Select Jury For Tokyo Rose Case
1st Day Of Trial

San Francisco, July 5—(AP)—Moving with remarkable speed, attorneys selected a jury for the Tokyo Rose treason case during the opening day of the trial.

Six women and six men were picked to hear the case of Mrs. Iva Toguri D'Aquino, 33, charged with eight acts of treason in broadcasting to allied troops in the Pacific war. Two women were selected as alternates.

The Los Angeles-born defendant sat almost motionless through the first day of the trial. She was pale and serious.

Communism Starts Open Rumpus At NEA Convention

Boston, July 5—(AP)—One teacher taxed another with membership in what he called "a Communist party-line organization" today and that touched off the first open rumpus on communism at the convention of the National Education Association.

There were indications that there might be more when the same question goes before a general session of 5,000 delegates and associates on Wednesday.

Today's verbal clash came at a separate meeting of about 300 teachers considering the recent NEA educational policies commission statement against communism. That statement, whose co-makers included Gen. Eisenhower and Harvard President Conant, called for a ban on Communist party members as American teachers.

Principals in the tilt were Rose Russell, legislative representative of the CIO Teachers' Union of New York City, and Commission Chairman John K. Norton of Columbia University's teachers college.

Miss Russell called the commission report "ill-conceived, ill-aimed and ill-omened." She said it would "continue the cold war xxx cause friction and hysteria xxx and start a witch-hunt. She charged the report erred in trying to make education 'an instrument of national policy.'"

As she finished, Chairman Norton told the teachers that the lady they had just heard "represents an organization which has consistently followed the Communist party line."

Chairman Norton overruled her. Then William Saling of the University of Illinois got up and asked the group: "Are we free to advocate any damn thing we want to no matter what it does to the American nation? There are limits to freedom in a democracy."

Mrs. Joanna Lindloff of New York said she didn't hold with Miss Russell's opinions but she should be given an opportunity to reply.

Miss Russell was allotted a minute. Referring to Norton's charge, Miss Russell said: "This is a good example of guilt by association. Every organization that is militant or dissents is called subversive in one way or another."

Ridicule Idea That U.S. Will Have Depression

Washington, July 5—(AP)—Congressional leaders leaving a conference with President Truman today ridiculed any idea the nation is edging into a depression.

They discussed the general economic picture and government finances. President Truman is preparing a mid-year economic report to congress.

Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.) was asked if he thought the country is in either a depression or recession. "When you've got over 58,000,000 people employed in industry and 30,000,000 farmers with money to pay for whatever they need, I'll be damned if I see how you can call it a recession," Rayburn replied.

"If it is," interrupted Senate Democratic leader Lucas (Ill.), "it's the most prosperous one we've ever experienced."

The White House said Mr. Truman's special economic message may go to the House and senate late this week or early next week. It probably will carry recommendations for dealing with the declining price and employment situation.

Rayburn said the President talked government finances with his congressional lieutenants. The treasury has just announced a $1,800,000,000 deficit for the annual period ended July 1. This was three times the $600,000,000 Mr. Truman had anticipated.

"How about the possibility of new taxes?" Rayburn was asked. "That's got to be determined yet," the House leader said.

Rayburn didn't make it clear whether he meant the President is reconsidering his plea for $4,000,000,000 additional taxes a year, or whether the matter is still up in the air in congress.

So far, congress has refused to make a move to boost taxes. Senator Sparkman (D-Ala.) said in advance of the White House meeting that he "wouldn't be a bit surprised" if Mr. Truman's new economic message shifts the administration's position to one of "safeguarding us against a skidding economy."

For some time administration policy has been directed at measures designed to stop inflation. That policy was outlined in Mr. Truman's messages to congress last January.

Hunt Ex-Convict For Murdering 2, Raping Woman

Sonoma, Calif., July 5—(AP)—An ex-convict wanted for questioning about the fatal beating of two men and the raping of a woman in the Valley of the Moon July 4 was hunted tonight.

The fugitive was identified in all-points police pick-up order as Henry Brun Guldbrandson, released only a month ago from a state prison after serving two years for stabbing a man in San Mateo.

Death Toll Higher Than Ever In U.S.

By The Associated Press
More persons died violently in the nation during the three-day Fourth of July weekend than in any other Independence Day celebration period in the country's history.

The final tabulation in a state-by-state survey showed 711 died between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Monday. Of these, 315 were traffic deaths, 256 were drownings and 140 were from miscellaneous causes.

The national safety council, in a statement in Chicago, called the record toll "shameful and disgraceful." It said "a showoff attitude" was responsible for the high traffic and drowning totals. The previous record of 628 Independence Day fatalities was set during the three days in 1941.

The heaviest toll for any holiday period was for four days in Christmas week, 1936, and 761 accidental deaths were reported, 555 of them as a result of traffic mishaps.

No Fireworks Deaths
Despite the record death toll this fourth, none was from fire works.

Table-Thumping Senators Without Tables To Thump

Washington, July 5—(AP)—Congress started roughing it today. Forced out of their regular quarters by remodelers, the Senators and representatives moved into temporary chambers.

The Senate took over an old room where it met from Dec. 6, 1819, to Jan. 4, 1859. This chamber later served for a time as Supreme Court headquarters.

The House convened in the Ways and Means committee room in the new House office building.

Right off, it was apparent that the cramped conditions will be primitive indeed.

For the Senators, who are great ones for table-thumping and hitherto have been equipped with individual desks, now find themselves with no tables to thump.

The majority leader, Senator Lucas (D-Ill.), and the minority leader, Senator Wherry (R-Nebr.), each has a table. And there are two manuscript racks for those having prepared speeches. In moments of extreme urgency, these may be turned into community thumping tables.

But in general it looks as if the senators will be under an extreme handicap—like a carpenter trying to build a house without a hammer.

Catholic Couple Refuse Conditions In Heresy Case

Boston, July 5—(AP)—A young Catholic couple, denied a church marriage for participating in a doctrinal dispute, were told today archdiocesan authorities would grant them a hearing—if they meet certain conditions. A spokesman for the pair quickly branded the conditions unacceptable.

The exchange—involving Miss Doris Coulombe, 22, of Cambridge, and Thomas Sennott, 26, of Arlington, both Catholics—was the latest development in what has come to be known as the Boston college heresy case.

Monsignor Walter J. Furlong, chancellor of the Boston archdiocese, said he "would be glad to talk" with Miss Coulombe and Sennott "under certain conditions—but the conditions will not be made public."

A friend of Miss Coulombe and Sennott, speaking for the engaged couple, said Monsignor Furlong's condition was that both publicly renounce St. Benedict's center, a Cambridge school in which both are students.

St. Benedict's, which has 55 Catholic lay students, is operated by the Rev. Leonard J. Peeney, S. J., noted Jesuit author, poet and lecturer who was "silenced"—deprived of priestly functions—by Archbishop Richard J. Cushing in mid-April for disobedience. The archbishop accompanied his order with another denying Catholics the sacraments if they attended the center.

Report Heat Wave Will Last Another Five Days In U.S.

By the Associated Press
A mass of coal air heading south from Canada fizzled out over central Wisconsin Tuesday, leaving the middle west to swelter in four or five days more of hot, sticky weather.

From the Rocky mountains to the eastern seaboard the country suffered through another day of torrid temperatures. For this section there is no relief in sight for at least another four or five days, the weather bureau said.

Nor was there a sign of a break in the scorching 43-day drought that has burned up more than $500,000,000 worth of crops in the farmlands of eight northeastern states.

Scattered showers cooled off parts of New York state and New England today but the relief appeared to be only temporary. Boston, where it was 100 degrees Monday, reported a high of 88 at noon Tuesday. New York city still was sweltering in 91 degree heat in early afternoon.

Both Boston and the New York Metropolitan area were hit by sudden, violent wind and rain squalls Monday. New York counted at least seven dead and considerable property damage.

Another Woman Accuses Engel Of Marriage Swindle

Chicago, July 5—(AP)—Another woman came forward today, pointed at Swindlin' Sigmund Engel, and told police, "that's the man."

Despite a lapse of 24 years, Mrs. Helma Spencer, 65, said she has never forgiven the man who married her in 1925 under the name of John Irving, then disappeared five months later with $4,100 of her money. And, she said, Engel looks mighty like Irving.

But the 73-year-old confidence man was outraged—less at the suggestion he swindled Mrs. Spencer than at her declaration her former husband had been a tailor.

"A tailor? That's a new one!" Engel snorted. "This woman is guessing like the rest of them. I've never sewed a button on in my life!"

When Mrs. Spencer asked to examine his hands for the needlemarks of "Irving's" trade, Engel retorted: "I've never done a day's work with my hands in my life!"

His work, he has confessed, was mostly oral—when he wasn't ear-nibbling, he was sweet-talking. Engel has boasted that with this technique he's bilked women out of millions.

Jap RY Official Assassinated For Cutting Salaries

Tokyo, Wednesday, July 6—(AP)—A high Japanese railway official who obeyed General MacArthur's orders to cut employees from the payroll, was found decapitated and mutilated today.

It was the first time since the surrender that Japanese resorted to the old custom of defying authority by assassination.

The body of Tadashi Shimoyama, president of Japan's National Railway Corp., was found beneath a railway bridge at the outskirts of Tokyo.

Shimoyama had been missing since early yesterday. Only a short time before he had issued an order dismissing the first 30,000 of 95,000 workers who will be let out in an economy drive.

The economy was ordered by occupation authorities. They want to see Japan balance its budget and relieve the present heavy burden on the U.S. taxpayer.

The killing was regarded as the boldest defiance of MacArthur in four years of the occupation. Labor, agitated by communists, is fighting the layoff of workers.

Sun Hatches Bad Eggs Into Chicks

Newark, Ohio, July 5—(AP)—It has been so hot here that dozens of eggs, left exposed to the sun, hatched out chicks.

A hatchery had thrown several crates of the eggs, considered unfit for use, on the city rubbish heap.

Residents of the area, attracted by "peeps," were astounded to discover dozens of baby chicks crackling out of shells and crawling about.

Little boys gathered up boxes of them.

The humane society found the chicks so weak from the heat that it had to destroy them. Then the remaining eggs were covered with earth.

The temperature in Newark yesterday reached 94 degrees.

USSR Asks Right To Look For Oil In Austrian Area

London, July 5—(AP)—Russia disclosed today that she wants the right to explore for oil in about 3,000 square miles of Austria, as part of her price for ending military occupation of that country.

For the first time Soviet ambassador Georgi Zarubin submitted his country's itemized bill of claims to former German assets in Austria at a meeting of Big Four foreign ministers' deputies writing an Austrian Independence treaty.

The list shows 26 areas where Russia would be entitled to prospect for oil, seven existing fields she would operate in Austria and five operating oil refining plants she would take over.

Specifically, a federal grand jury last December indicted Hiss on these two counts:

That he lied under oath when he denied feeding secret state department documents to Chambers.

That he lied under oath when he testified he never had seen Chambers after Jan. 1, 1937.

Chambers said Hiss passed him secret papers in 1937 and 1938.

If convicted, Hiss faces a maximum of 10 years in prison and a fine of $50,000.

The defense rested its case last Thursday, hinging most of its denial on Hiss' unswerving declarations of innocence and a merciless attack on the veracity of Chambers, key government witness.

Coal Contract Talks Will Resume July 19

Pittsburgh, July 5—(AP)—Resumption of coal contract talks with one segment of the bituminous industry was moved back from July 12 to July 19 today as soft coal production climbed toward normal at the end of the miners' nation-wide vacation.

Exra Van Horn, spokesman for northern and western operators, said the delay was jointly agreed upon by operators and the United Mine Workers "to canvass mutual problems which are expected to come up." He did not elaborate further.

Bargaining between the UMW and southern operators is scheduled to begin again July 12. Contract discussions with hard coal operators start Thursday.

Almost all the nation's 480,000 hard and soft coal diggers returned to work today on a new three-day-a-week basis. For the first time in recent UMW history, they were working without a contract.

In western Pennsylvania, Indiana, West Virginia and Kentucky the return to work was slowed, mostly by failure of management to reopen the pits.

In Pennsylvania, at least 9,000 miners were unable to work after ending their annual, 10-day paid vacation. Some operators, anticipating the diggers would not be "willing and able" to work without a contract, did not have their pits ready. Other mines had not finished repair work started during the miners' vacation.

Non-union mines in the west Kentucky field remained idle. Reports showed about half of the UMW-operated mines in that area had reduced production. There was no explanation for the UMW members' failure to show up for work, other than the usual absenteeism following a vacation.

Five of Indiana's largest soft coal mines remained closed for unspecified reasons. UMW officials declined comment.

WEATHER

The Norbury Sanatorium, cooperative observer for the U.S. Weather Bureau, yesterday reported the temperature for Tuesday as follows: High, 91; low, 72; and at 6 p.m., 85. Forecast for Illinois—Mostly fair and hot and humid today with a few local afternoon thundershowers. High 92 to 94.

PARIS ACCORD LOOKS HOPEFUL, BUT IT'S STILL TOO EARLY TO TELL

The four-power accord reached at Paris resembles the first shaky steps of the hospital patient arising from a long siege in bed. No one can be sure whether he'll soon be walking more steadily or whether he'll flop back into bed in a state of collapse.

In other words, it is impossible to put down at this time the real value of the agreements. They hinge on the good faith of the Russians. They can mean a firm stride toward peace, or nothing.

The western diplomats and their peoples can be forgiven for viewing the results with tongue in cheek until they see how the Soviet Union performs. The memory of broken agreements is still vivid.

The most promising feature of the accord is that relating to the proposed Austrian peace treaty. If such a treaty could be signed it would mean removal of Russian troops not only from Austria but from Hungary and Rumania, where they are supposedly guarding lines to Austria.

In the present tentative advance we plainly owe much to Russia's feud with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia. A major barrier to agreement was removed when the Soviet Union withdrew its support of Tito's territorial claims against Austria.

Russia also showed a somewhat more co-operative spirit in the knotty matter of German assets in Austria. The Kremlin yielded its former sweeping demands in this field and agreed to accept $150,000,000 from Austria in settlement of its claims.

Beyond this, however the western powers stipulated that the final settlement would give Russia all the assets of the Danube Shipping Company in Austria, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria; and substantial extraction and prospecting rights in oil fields in eastern Austria.

The assets problem, furthermore is still left open. And last-minute Russian maneuvering at Paris raises the question of whether Moscow may not yet find a way to fasten a stranglehold on Austria's economy.

The deputy foreign ministers and regular diplomatic channels will try to settle remaining provisions of the Austrian treaty by Sept. 1. Meantime, we can perhaps gauge Russian sincerity by watching the Soviets' behavior in Germany.

The Paris agreement frankly conceded the four powers' inability to get anywhere on German unity and a peace treaty. But all pledged themselves to go on trying for those goals.

As interim steps, they reaffirmed the New York agreement on lifting of the Berlin blockade, agreed to work further for restoration of normal traffic and communications to return at least in part to four-power control of Germany, and to seek expansion of trade and other economic relations between the eastern and western zones.

Western officials aren't putting much stock in these features. The general reaction is that in Germany we are about where we were before the Paris conference began a month ago. But they are willing to be shown.

Possibly the chief gain in all this is none of the specific proposals but simply the evidence that Russia appears to desire of lessening of cold war tensions—at least for the moment.

Without knowing for sure why Russia wants this breathing spell we can welcome it. So long as we do not relax our vigilance against a quick Soviet turnabout toward new cold war aggressions.

CLIPPED ANGEL

Copyright, 1949, NEA SERVICE, INC.

By Clive Grieron Cornish

THE STORY: Mike McTag, a mining engineer, has been hired by Cory Parrish, a beautiful young woman, to learn why the Dark Angel mine, inherited from her father, has fallen off in production. Mike makes secret samplings and finds out that the mine is being run by a dummy company. He finds some suspicious activity at the mine and begins his search for a secret exit to the Dark Angel, through which high-grade ore could be smuggled out.

PRETTY soon I'd worked my way back to the caved drifts of the early days, within 300 feet of the portal. I lit a cigarette and sat down to think.

It looked as if that hidden exit I was looking for had to be one of those old drifts. If that was so then either the drift was in good enough shape to use but was camouflaged to look as if it were caved in, or else it had been deliberately caved on Wednesday so I wouldn't notice it.

I went outside and brought back a mucking shovel. I didn't like the bigness of the job ahead of me. Ordinarily I'd have requisitioned a crew of huskies, but the way things were I preferred to do my own digging, and it looked as if the price of mistrust was going to run high in sore muscles.

I must have moved close to a couple of tons of rubble in the drift I'd selected, when I realized it was 4:30 and Cory ought to have heard from the smelter.

I ditched the shovel and started walking toward the main haulage tunnel. I hadn't gone more than 30 feet when I tripped and went sprawling on my face—and saved my life.

A stick of bombs, in the shape of 100-pound rocks, whistled down a raise and smashed into the floor directly ahead of me, splattering dirt over my back. I was on my feet and out of that drift before the echo stopped.

In the main haulage tunnel I halted to get my breath and curse myself for a fool. I should have been watching for a thing like that—taking on a gang single-handed.

I brushed off the dirt as best I could and started for the main portal but before I reached it a sort of delayed reaction set in and I had to stop from sheer weakness.

It was over soon enough, but not before I'd had time to wonder when the next attempt would take place and whether it would be successful.

FOR somebody who had just received good news Cory looked pretty glum when I finally reached her office.

"Well," I said, "did you get the figures?"

She pushed a sheet of paper across the desk at me. I picked it up and saw she had the details all written out: ounces of gold, ounces of silver, per cent copper, all translated into dollars and cents. I looked at it again. Thursday's car was worth $964. I sat down with a thump. "That can't be right!"

"Twenty tons at $48.20 per ton is $964. Check it yourself."

"But—"

She got up and went over to the window. "I've been thinking it over Mike. I'm going to tell Doug Weyman to accept that offer for the mine and get out while I can. I was all wrong, Mike, letting you persuade me into thinking there was something funny going on. Everyone on the townsite is a friend of mine, and I ought to have known better than to doubt my friends. It's my fault. I'll pay your fee up to date and we'll call it off."

I wouldn't have worried if she'd been mad—I could have handled that—but the way she spoke it was infinitely worse. She sounded as if she were sorry for me. Sorry—and disappointed.

Before I could say anything Uncle Jake had wandered in. "Hello, there, young fellow," he said, "I hear you were all over the workings today. Find anything we've missed?"

I was in no condition to answer him. My mind was numb. He rambled on, oozing benevolence. "You know, Mr. McTag, Cory's dad used to say the only thing he didn't like about Dark Angel was that the ore always looked better than it turned out to be. I sort of got an idea, young man, that's what's been worrying you."

JUST then Archie Trask bustled in, full of energy and manly goodwill. He greeted everybody cheerfully, and then Cory's figures on the sheet of paper caught his eye. "Forty-eight dollars and 20 cents a ton. What's that, Cory? One of our cars?"

She was embarrassed. "That's the car we shipped yesterday, Archie. I phoned the smelter to see how it turned out."

He looked puzzled. "But, Cory, we got the figures on that car from Riggs this morning, just like we do on every car that goes out. Forty-eight-seventeen a ton, wasn't that it?"

Cory passed the buck without a quail. "Mr. McTag said it was going to run around $150 a ton, so he got me to phone the smelter."

Uncle Jake looked at me like a dog that's been whipped for reasons it doesn't understand.

"Mr. McTag," he said sadly, "I wish I knew why you didn't trust us."

Good Buy - all around

FRIENDS gather, look over that long bonnet and wish they had as much Fireball life as you have here.

They size up the broad windshield and narrow corner posts — and don't have to be told how these things step up "see-power."

They appraise the smart styling, the roomy interiors, the usability of luggage space — and agree you've made a buy.

But don't stop, please, with letting them look. Invite them in and introduce them to some of the special pleasures you'll know as a Buick owner.

Show them, for instance, how completely different Dynaflo Drive is, with every mile cushioned by flowing oil and none of the rigid harshness of direct-drive cars.

Let them sample the matchless Buick ride, with all four wheels cradled on soft, coil springs and low-pressure tires made still easier-riding by extra-wide rims.

Point out how solid this Buick feels. That's what you get from husky frames, low-swung weight, and power delivered through a torque-tube instead of the rear springs.

For the truth is, this Buick's a bargain on much, much more than you can see.

It's a big buy on the solid goodness a demonstration quickly makes plain. On increasingly favorable delivery dates. On attractive price. On the kind of "deal" your Buick dealer makes.

That's why we keep saying "Better see your Buick dealer — and get that order in promptly!"

BUICK alone has all these features

- Silk-smooth DYNAFLO DRIVE • FULL-VIEW VISION from enlarged glass area • SWING-EASY DOORS and easy access • "LIVING SPACE" INTERIORS with Deep-Cradle cushions • Buoyant-riding QUADRUPLE COIL SPRING • Lively FIREBALL STRAIGHT-RIGHT POWER with SELF-SETTING VALVE LIFTERS plus HI-POISED-ENGINE MOUNTINGS • Low-pressure tires on SAFETY-RIDE RIMS • Cruiser-Line VENTIPORTS • DUREX BEARINGS, main and connecting rods • BODY BY FISHER

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER models.

CLIPPED ANGEL

Copyright, 1949, NEA SERVICE, INC.

By Clive Grieron Cornish

THE STORY: Mike McTag, a mining engineer, has been hired by Cory Parrish, a beautiful young woman, to learn why the Dark Angel mine, inherited from her father, has fallen off in production. Mike makes secret samplings and finds out that the mine is being run by a dummy company. He finds some suspicious activity at the mine and begins his search for a secret exit to the Dark Angel, through which high-grade ore could be smuggled out.

THEY had an extra special dinner at the boarding house that night, for somebody's birthday—or so I'm told. I didn't eat any.

I sat in my room upstairs and waited for my mind to stop running around in a huge circle so I could think more or less coherently.

The thing that had me looping was that the impossible had happened.

I had personally sampled the ore from the working faces of the mine and that ore had gone into the mill bunkers on Wednesday. I had seen it there with Uncle Jake. The low-grade was there and the high-grade was there.

On a perfectly normal production schedule, by Thursday afternoon it had been milled, concentrated, dried and loaded into a car. With 15 ore concentrated ten to one, that car had to run $150 to the ton.

Instead, it ran less than $50. Why? That was the hundred dollar question.

I dug up the slip of paper with the assay figures that Effie had given me over the phone and stared at them. I knew the outfit that did my assay work in Seattle—they'd been in business 50 years and they didn't make mistakes.

I tried to remember Tuesday night. Supposing, on that last sampling at 2 o'clock in the morning I'd been so dog-tired that I'd taken too much from the pay-streak, not once, but from all four levels? And supposing that for once in my life I had succeeded in tying a genuine reef knot?

MAYBE Riggs was okay. Maybe everybody was okay except me, and I was a nasty-minded, suspicious old crook of 37 years, overdue for retirement and prematurely soured on human nature.

And yet, less than three hours ago somebody had tried to kill me!

At that point I must have fallen asleep, even though I was sitting up and fully dressed. I dreamed I was chased along a tunnel by Uncle Jake and young Riggs and the tough character from the Argus Mines.

They were pitching chunks of ore at me and yelling, "Yah! So you don't trust us, eh?" The mouth of the tunnel appeared ahead and I made a desperate leap for safety—and landed flat in the mud below the chute at Argus Mines.

I fell off the chair when I made that leap, and even though I was partly awake I started to scramble out of the mud. That woke me up completely, but the dream was so vivid I could still almost feel the smooth soft surface of the mud under my hands.

And then I knew what was wrong with Argus Mines.

That mud had no right to be smooth! If the mine had been operating the week before, then the ground under the loading chute ought to have been crisscrossed back and forth with hundreds of truck tire marks.

It wasn't—because no ore had ever come out of the Argus Mine.

I WAS about to open the door and walk downstairs when it struck me it would be foolhardy to advertise my movements. It was not more than an eight-foot drop from my window to the ground and I was confident nobody saw me. I kept in the shadow of a fence, by-passed several houses, and cut through somebody's cabbage patch to the main street.

I could see a sedan parked across the street and the silhouette of somebody sitting in the front seat. At 2 o'clock in the morning they weren't there to admire the view. I sneaked back to the lane and came out in the shadows a hundred yards farther down.

The overhead lights in the main tunnel were off but the electric clusters in the mill cast a faint glow near the portal.

Once inside I moved along the left-hand wall until I came to the first old drift. I couldn't use my headlamp because it showed too much light, so I used a pocket flash and shaded it with my hands.

I was looking for tracks, and not the kind made by animals, human or otherwise, but iron rails.

I found what I wanted, opposite a cross-cut about three hundred feet back from the portal. I found it when I brushed aside the muck from the tongue of a switch and tapped the steel rail gently with my hammer.

It wasn't like the others—covered with great leaves of rust that crumbled like corn flakes. Underneath the muck the metal was clean and sound—and that meant that it was used regularly.

SURPRISE ARRIVAL—Mrs. Carl Leutner of Cleveland, Ohio, thought it was a piece of watermelon she ate that gave her those "indigestion" pains. Instead she found it was the arrival of her brand-new son. Unaware that a baby was on the way, it was a big surprise to the couple. Besides being caught without a supply of cigars to pass out, Leutner had to tour the neighborhood in search of a layette.

Miss Virginia Sample Weds David Billings Vows Exchanged In Candlelight Rites At Church

Vows of marriage were exchanged by Miss Virginia Maxine Sample and David Billings in a candlelight ceremony solemnized Sunday at 1:30 p. m. at the First Baptist church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Sample of Woodson. Her husband's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Billings of Danville.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Clair E. Malcomson at an altar adorned with ferns and cut flowers.

Preceding the rites, Miss Carol Holkenbrink sang "Because," "At Dawning" and "The Lord's Prayer." Miss Mahala McGehee was the accompanist.

Members of the bridal party included Miss Shirley Glossop as maid of honor, Don Longer of Danville as best man and John Gaddo, Harold Stuebe and Robert Sample, the bride's brother, as ushers.

Father as Escort
Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was attired in the traditional gown of white satin, made en-train and featuring long pointed sleeves and a rounded neckline.

Her veil of illusion tulle was held in place with a tiara of pearlized orange blossoms. White flowers fashioned the bridal bouquet.

Of pale blue, the gown worn by Miss Glossop was of marquisette over taffeta, styled with an off-the-shoulder neckline and full skirt. She wore matching mitts and a picture hat and carried a colonial bouquet.

Reception at church
A reception was held in the church parlors following the ceremony. A tiered wedding cake topped with miniature bride and groom was cut by the couple. Serving was done by the bridegroom's sisters. The Misses Helen and Clara Billings of Danville.

The couple then left on a wedding trip, after which they will be at home at 1025 West College avenue. For traveling Mrs. Billings wore a pale blue suit, with white accessories and the corsage from her bouquet.

The bride was graduated from Jacksonville high school and from Brown's business college and has been employed in the business office of Illinois college.

Mr. Billings graduated from Danville high school and served two years in the army. He is a junior at Illinois college.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Billings, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Billings, Jr., Mrs. Ruth Clark and children and the Misses Helen and Clara Billings, all of Danville.

Convict Can't Open Safe To Save Man Locksmith Charges

Salt Lake City, July 5—(P)—A state official's plan to use a convicted robber to open a recalcitrant safe and thereby save a $75 locksmith's charge sounded good but the embarrassed convict after working all day had to admit it was too tough a job without special tools.

The safe is an old one found in a liquor control commission warehouse. No one could remember or find—the combination. Commissioner J. W. Pace, after getting the locksmith's estimate on the costs, appealed to Prison Warden Mason W. Hill for some free help.

Mason brought in a convict, unidentified, who claimed to have been a safe repairman before he was sentenced to prison for robbery. The convict first twisted the dial and listened expertly. But, he couldn't hear anything.

"There aren't any tumblers in here," he said. "You'll have to use a punch."

Chisels and sledge hammers were supplied. The convict pounded away. Nothing happened.

The prisoner then suggested explosives. Officials vetoed that.

So the convict gave up. Tomorrow Commissioner Pace is going to try a drill.

The locksmith? He planned to do it with an acetylene torch.

Stained Glass Window Installed In Church

A stained glass window, the gift of Mrs. Charles H. Joy in memory of her husband, has recently been installed over the altar of Trinity Episcopal church. Since Trinity is the mother church of the Episcopal church in the state of Illinois, it is particularly appropriate that this window should depict the four patron saints of the Anglican Communion.

deacon's garb, with his symbol, the thistle. The right center panel shows St. Patrick of Ireland, robed as an abbot, holding a shamrock. The right panel is devoted to St. David of Wales, wearing his bishop's mitre and cope, with his symbol, the leek.

Below each of the saints is the escutcheon of his country. In the four center tracery sections above the figures of St. Andrew and St. Patrick are the four archangels: Michael, Gabriel, Raphael, and Uriel. Beneath the archangels are their respective symbols: the sword, the lily, the fish, and the star.

The window was designed and executed by the Emil Frey studios of St. Louis. Some of the glass was made in this country, and some of it was imported from England, Germany, and Italy. Rich blues predominate, but there are bright accents of red, green, and amber.

The Rt. Rev. Charles Asa Clough, Bishop of Springfield, will dedicate the window when he makes his next parish visitation on October 23.

Rev. E. A. Hedges Retired Minister, Dies Here Sunday

Rev. E. A. Hedges, retired Methodist minister who had made his home in Jacksonville since his retirement in 1931, died at 12:30 p.m. Sunday at Our Saviour's hospital, following a three months illness.

A son of Thaddeus and Elizabeth Johnson Hedges, he was born Sept. 16, 1866, at Mendon, Ill. His parents and one sister, Mrs. Fred Schmiedeknecht, preceded him in death. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Ada Lutener of Quincy and Miss Emma Hedges, who made her home with her brother and assisted him in his ministry.

During his retirement, Rev. Hedges remained active by supplying Methodist churches in many communities adjacent to Jacksonville, and for some time following the death of Rev. Lathan of Northminister Presbyterian church, supplied the pulpit in that church.

Funeral services will be held at the Williamson Funeral Home Wednesday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Ray Ragan, former district superintendent of the Jacksonville district, officiating. Interment will be made in the family lot in Kingsdon in Adams county.

Baby Found Dead In Crib; Parents Admit Beating It

Chicago, July 5—(P)—A baby girl was found dead today, face down in her crib, and police said the child's parents admitted slapping her to stop her crying.

Held without charge were William Lehman, 27, and his wife, Inez, 21, parents of the dead baby, 30 months old Elizabeth Ann.

Detective William Clark said the child's body bore marks as if from a beating. He quoted her mother as saying: "We both slapped Elizabeth Ann and held her down in her crib Monday night. She wouldn't stop crying. We wanted to quiet her. I slapped her in the face and my husband did too. We also slapped her back."

The detective said no inquest has been set since an examination may show Elizabeth Ann died from natural causes. A physician called by the parents said the child had been dead 10 to 12 hours when he arrived at their one-room apartment late this morning. He called police.

Czechs To Protect Catholics Who Join Government

Prague, July 5—(P)—Prime Minister Antonin Zapotocky said today the Roman Catholic hierarchy will not be allowed to discipline pro-government priests in Czechoslovakia's current struggle between church and state.

The premier led a large delegation of communist government dignitaries attending religious holiday observances at Devin, an ancient monastery near Bratislava in strongly Catholic Slovakia.

He did not refer to recent rioting by Slovak Catholic peasants, up in arms to defend priests loyal to Archbishop Josef Beran, Czechoslovak primate, against possible arrest.

But he pledged government protection to priests who have joined a separatist Catholic action organization sponsored by the government against ex-communication or suspension.

"We will not permit priests to be expelled by the hierarchy because of their positive standpoint toward the will of the people," Zapotocky said.

Combine Injures Clarence E. Smith In Farm Accident

Clarence E. Smith, 65, well known Franklin farmer, accidentally suffered a fractured right thigh Tuesday afternoon when his leg was run over by the main wheel of an eight-foot combine.

The accident occurred at the Smith farm, rural route 1, Franklin.

Albert Killebrew, who is employed on the Smith farm, and his son, John, were operating the combine and tractor. Mr. Smith noticed a trickle of wheat flowing from the underside of the combine and stopped the men. He crawled under the combine to inspect the bottom for a possible break. Wishing to have the combine in operation, he called to Mr. Killebrew to start the combine motor. The tractor driver misunderstood him and started up the tractor, pulling the heavy wheel over Mr. Smith's leg.

One of the right knee processes was also fractured.

Mr. Smith was brought to Passavant hospital, where he is under the care of Dr. Ellsworth Black.

Buyers Market In Home Furnishings Begins In Chicago

Chicago, July 5—(P)—Thousands of buyers representing stores from hamlets and great cities in the United States, Canada and Latin America came here today to look over the latest in home furnishings.

The occasion was the opening day of the summer home furnishings market held in the sprawling merchandise mart and the furniture mart. At these two buildings are displayed "everything you need for the home."

Some 40 trade groups represented by nearly 25,000 buyers are exhibiting their 2,200 lines of home furnishings. The meeting lasts until July 16. It marks the furniture mart's 25th anniversary.

Prices of the furnishings on display appear to be in line with consumer demands, said Lawrence H. Whiting, merchandise mart president.

"Retailers are in a good position to buy and have the money with which to buy," he said, adding that prices have leveled off and now are stabilized.

Whiting said most of the products on display will be on sale this fall in the nation's stores.

More Storage Needed For Expected Harvest

The need for additional farm storage to shelter this fall's anticipated large corn crop was stressed at regional meeting of AAA committee-men held here Tuesday afternoon. The 55 committee-men from 18 west central Illinois counties assembled in the dining room of the Dunlap hotel for a discussion of current problems.

In charge of the meeting were Harry M. Combrink and Glenn Fisher of the state office and Ewell Gerdes of Chanderville.

The three men advocated more storage on the farms. They observed that there are 500 million bushels of corn now under government seal. Iowa farmers have secured loans on 200 million bushels; Illinois farmers have loans on 150 millions. Additional space to store about 250 millions will be needed, the speakers estimated.

They urged emphasis on the loan plan offered by the Commodity Credit Corporation for new cribs and granaries. Under it producers may borrow up to 85% of the cost of the structure, or 45 cents per bushel capacity, whichever is the smaller. These loans may run for three to five years, with interest at 4%.

The loan rate for this year's wheat crop probably will be announced next week, the committee-men learned. Oats stored on farms may be sealed at 70 cents a bushel, but there is no storage allowance on oats.
